Jason Lo

BA Philosophy, Intern at ChinaChem Group, National Sports Teams Athlete

Going into the field of Web Dev with minimal background knowledge was not easy. My biggest challenge is remembering and applying suitable methods for desired functionality. I find that consistency is a very helpful in tackling this challenge. My professional athletic career taught me the importance of consistency, it is necessary to put in the work everyday to hone a skill. Also, my philosophy background was invaluable to logically breakdown programming concepts for me to understand and apply.

Harmoody

The goal of my app is to utilize face detection technology to identify the User's emotion then present music from the Spotify API that corresponds to the user's emotion. The user will have an option to choose whether they want the music to amplify their current mood or bring them back to an equilibrium.
